CLEAR-COM'S LARRY ESTRIN TO PARTICIPATE IN WIRELESS PANEL DISCUSSION AT AES 2012

Expert Offers Insight into RF Coordination for Live Events

SAN FRANCISCO, OCTOBER 16, 2012 — Clear-Com[®], a global leader in critical voice communication systems, is pleased to announce that its Strategic Technology Specialist Larry Estrin will be a panelist for the AES 2012 live sound seminar entitled, “LS6 - Wireless Frequency Wrangling at Large Events” taking place on Saturday, October 27, 4:00 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

As part of the panel, Estrin, along with other industry leaders, will provide his expertise on the overall approach to RF coordination, preparation, and setup for large events. Topics to be discussed include microphones, in-ear monitoring, and production communications, with a special focus on antenna systems, cabling, RF environment isolation, monitoring, verifying operation and procedures.

Estrin is no stranger to frequency coordination. He has 39 years experience from his work on numerous landmark events, such as the first multi-satellite global broadcast of a major concert, the live stereo broadcast of the Olympic Opening Ceremonies, stereo broadcasts of the Grammys and Academy Awards, as well as numerous high-profile projects for the White House, NFL and Disney. From his current position with Clear-Com, he will be able to speak in depth on the coordination of wireless intercom system for live events.

Estrin will be available throughout the show at Clear-Com's booth (1218) to answer additional questions. For more information on the seminar, please visit www.aes.org.
